FEE SCHEDULE – COUNTY DEPARTMENT FEES

Policy

Washington County, Minnesota, provides a wide range of services to its residents. In order to control expenditures, distribute costs equitably, and recoup some of the expense to provide these services, user fees have been established. Since many of the services provided by the county have a level of public benefit included in them, the full price to deliver many services will not be charged to the user. When a single user can be identified as the sole benefactor of a government service, the full cost of that service will be charged. It is the county's policy to determine and inform users of the full cost to deliver a service, regardless of the amount recovered through the user fee.

A portion of the cost to deliver a service can be supported by revenues other than user fees; i.e., levy, grants, state aids, when there is a public benefit provided.

Other factors that may be considered when setting fees are:

- there must be a reasonable relation between the fee and the cost of providing the service (M.S. 373.41).
- fee collectability
- market conditions
- ease of implementation
- simplicity of fee schedules
- economic considerations
- level of subsidy provided due to public benefit
- state and federal statutes governing service delivery fees
- grant compliance
- industry pricing standards
- public policy implication

Unless a statute has specified a fee, a public hearing before the County Board must be held to establish the fee (M.S. 373.41).

On an exception basis, Department Heads are empowered to make a fee decision without going to the County Board for approval as long as the fee determined is in compliance with the Board's adopted fee guidelines.

Guidelines

The costs to deliver services can be broken down into four classifications:

Direct Labor and Benefits - An average labor effort is identified in all fee areas. This labor time element or elements (if more than one person performs tasks in the same area) is multiplied by a "productive" hourly rate. This productive hourly rate reflects the cost of compensated absences such as vacations, holidays, and sick leave. An appropriate amount of benefits is also allocated to the fee area; this typically includes PERA, FICA, and insurance benefits.

Services and Supplies - These costs are department budget items necessary to support the activities performed. These costs include items such as training, telephone, contracted services, maintenance, and office supplies that are directly identifiable to the service area.

Department Administration - Such items include appropriate costs for supervision, support staff, and executive management. Costs include salaries, benefits, and related services and supplies.

Indirect Overhead Costs - A central services full-cost allocation plan is prepared to allocate the costs of central service departments such as Accounting and Finance, Human Resources, Information Technology, the County Board, and County Administration. These costs are typically not included in departmental budgets even though central service departments provide necessary services to benefiting departments. Costs allocated include not only those based on a governmental accounting basis (i.e., flow of funds), but additionally include other costs such as interest expense and building use charges. Cost principles used in the allocation of costs are similar to those used in the private sector. The cost allocation plan results in the distribution of costs in a fair and equitable manner to those departments benefiting from the central service expenditures.

The FULL COST to deliver a service is the sum of the four classifications. The full cost will only be charged when there is a sole identifiable benefactor of the government service.

The DEPARTMENT COST is the cost the department incurs to provide a service. It is the sum of direct labor and benefits, services and supplies, and department administration. The department cost is the amount to be charged to the general public and other government entities.

The PERFORMANCE COST is the cost to perform an activity. It includes direct labor and benefits, plus services and supplies. This is the cost charged between departments of the county.

County departments will only charge each other for specific services or supplies. No administrative surcharges will be added. The intention for charging other departments for services is to distribute costs of certain support services or aid in recouping costs through outside reimbursement.

Annually, the county will adopt a user fee schedule adjusted to keep pace with inflation and/or the cost for providing the service. Exceptions to the policy guidelines require approval by the County Board.

Responsibility

Department heads are responsible for developing departmental fee recommendations and identifying factors to be considered pursuant to these user fee guidelines. Except in those areas where fees are established by law, the calculation of costs for determining fees will be based on the methods used by Griffith and Associates in the preparation of Washington County's Cost Allocation Plan.
